1. Since the liberation of Poland there have been three types of repatriates, viz:

Reportees, including those who left Poland at the outbreak of the war, persons deported from Poland [redacted] for enforced labor, and similar categories. Between 10 October 1945 and 29 October 1946, there were forty-two repatriate trains, the total of repatriates in this category being 43,522. 50X1-HUM

b. Miners. [redacted] 50X1-HUM

5,000 miners and their families were to be repatriated. There were thirty-two trains and 5,029 miners and their families, i.e., a total of 18,600 persons, were repatriated. That as many as thirty-two trains were used between 15 May 1945 and 15 October 1945 is explained by the fact that the repatriates in this category were allowed to take their household belongings, including bicycles, motorcycles, and motor-cars.

c. Agricultural workers, of which 2,000 were repatriated in November 1946. 50X1-HUM
